In one of the most concentrated investigations of discrimination by real estate agents in the half-century since enactment of America's landmark fair housing law, Newsday found evidence of widespread separate and unequal treatment of minority potential homebuyers and minority communities on Long Island.

After a 3-year investigation, Newsday's investigation uncovered widespread evidence of unequal treatment by real estate agents on Long Island: 19% of the time against Asians, 39% against Hispanics, and 49% against Blacks.

GLOSSARY

The purpose of this selected Glossary is to strengthen our understanding and use of common Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (EDI) terminology that supports the building of a robust EDI state system that is a coordinated and comprehensive system, where all members of the community can thrive in diverse, equitable, and inclusive environments.

Able-ism

The belief that disabled individuals are inferior to non-disabled individuals leading to discrimination toward and oppression of individuals with disabilities and physical differences.

Bias

Prejudice in favor of or against one thing, person, or group compared with another, usually in a way considered to be unfair.

Bigotry

An unreasonable or irrational attachment to negative stereotypes and prejudices.

BIPOC

(Pronounced “bye-pock”), A term referring to “Black and/or Indigenous People of Color.” While “POC” or People of Color is often used as well. BIPOC explicitly leads with Black and Indigenous identities, which helps to counter anti-Black racism and “invisibilization” of Native Communities.

Conscious Bias

Refers to our attitudes and beliefs about a person or group on a conscious level. Much of the time, these biases and their expression arise as the direct result of a perceived threat. When people feel threatened, they are more likely to draw a group boundary to distinguish themselves from others.

Cultural Appropriation

The adoption or theft of icons, rituals, aesthetic standards, and behavior from one culture or subculture by another. It is generally applied when the subject culture is a minority culture or somehow subordinate in social, political, economic, or military status to approaching culture. This “appropriation” often occurs without any fundamental understanding of why the original culture took part in these activities, often converting culturally significant artifacts, practices, beliefs, and culture, giving them a significance that is entirely different/less nuanced than they would originally have had.

[1] <https://www.racialequitytools.org/glossary>

Culture

The pattern of daily life learned consciously and unconsciously by a group of people. These patterns can be seen in language, governing practices, arts, customs, holiday celebrations, food, religion, dating rituals, and clothing.

Disability

An impairment that may be cognitive, developmental, intellectual, mental, physical, sensory, or some combination of these. It substantially affects a person's life activities and may be present from birth or during their lifetime.

Discrimination

The denial of justice and fair treatment by individuals and institutions in many areas, including employment, education, housing, banking, and political rights. Discrimination is an action that can follow prejudiced thinking.

Domestic Partner

Either member of an unmarried, cohabiting, straight, and same-sex couple that seeks benefits usually available only to spouses.

Dominant Culture

The cultural values, beliefs, and practices that are assumed to be the most common and influential within a given society.

Equality

A state of affairs in which all people within a specific society or isolated group have the same status in certain respects, including civil rights, freedom of speech, property rights, and equal access to certain social goods and services.

Equity

Takes into consideration the fact that social identifiers (race, gender, socioeconomic status, etc.) affect equality. In an equitable environment, an individual or a group would be given what was needed to give them equal advantage. This would be different from what others were receiving. It could be more or different.

Ethnicity

A social construct that divides individuals into smaller groups based on characteristics such as a shared sense of group or membership, values, behavior patterns, language, political and economic interest, history, and ancestral geographical base.

First Nation People

Individuals who identify as those who were the first people to live on the Western Hemisphere continent. People also identified as Native Americans.

Gender Dysphoria (Gender Identity Disorder)

Significant clinical distress caused when a person's assigned birth gender is not the same as the one with which they identify.

Gender Expression

External manifestations of gender expressed through a person's name, pronouns, clothing, haircut, behavior, voice, and or body characteristics.

[1] <https://www.pacificu.edu/life-pacific/support-safety/office-equity-diversity-inclusion/edi-resources/glossary-terms>

Gender Fluid

A person who does not identify with a single fixed gender; of or relating to a person having or expressing a fluid or unfixed gender identity.

Gender Identity

Your internal sense of self; how you relate to your gender(s).

Gender Non-Conforming

A broad term referring to people who do not behave in a way that conforms to the traditional expectations of their gender or whose gender expression does not fit into a category.

Gender Queer

Reject notions of static categories of gender and embrace a fluidity of gender identity and often, though not always, sexual orientation. People who identify as “genderqueer” may see themselves as male or female aligned, neither male nor female, or as falling completely outside these categories.

Hispanic

Describes people, descendants, and cultures of Spanish-speaking countries, including many Latin American countries and Spain.

Implicit Bias

Also known as unconscious or hidden bias, implicit biases are negative associations people unknowingly hold. They are expressed automatically without conscious awareness. Many studies have indicated that implicit biases affect individuals’ attitudes and actions, thus creating real-world implications, even though individuals may not even be aware that those biases exist within themselves. Notably, implicit biases have been shown to trump individuals’ stated commitments to equality and fairness, thereby producing behavior that diverges from the explicit attitudes that many people profess.

Imposter Syndrome

Refers to individuals' feelings of not being as capable or adequate as others. Common symptoms of the impostor phenomenon include feelings of phoniness, self-doubt, and inability to take credit for one's accomplishments. The literature has shown that such impostor feelings influence a person's self-esteem, professional goal directed-ness, locus of control, mood, and relationships with others.

Inclusion

Authentically bringing traditionally excluded individuals and/or groups into processes, activities, and decision/policy making in a way that shares power.

Inclusive Language

Refers to non-sexist language or language that includes all persons in its references. For example, "a writer needs to proofread his work" excludes females due to the masculine reference of the pronoun. Likewise, "a nurse must disinfect her hands" is exclusive of males and stereotypes nurses as females.

Institutional Bias

A tendency for the procedures and practices of institutions to operate in ways that result in certain social groups being advantaged or favored and others being disadvantaged or devalued. This need not be the result of any conscious prejudice or discrimination but rather of the majority simply following existing rules or norms.

Institutional Racism

The perpetuation of discrimination on the basis of "race" by political, economic, or legal institutions and systems.

Intersectionality

An approach largely advanced by women of color, arguing that classifications such as gender, race, class, and others cannot be examined in isolation from one another; they interact and intersect in individuals' lives, in society, in social systems, and are mutually constitutive. Exposing [one's] multiple identities can help clarify how a person can simultaneously experience privilege and oppression. For example, a Black woman in America does not experience gender inequalities in the same way as a white woman, nor racial oppression identical to that experienced by a Black man. Each race and gender intersection produces a qualitatively different life.

LGBTQIA+

Acronym encompassing the diverse groups of lesbians, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex, and asexual and/or corresponding queer alliances/associations. It is a common misconception that the "A" stands for allies/ally. The full acronym is "Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Intersex, Asexual, with all other queer identities that are not encompassed by the letters themselves being represented by the "+."

Marginalization

A social process by which individuals or groups are (intentionally or unintentionally) distanced from access to power and resources and constructed as insignificant, peripheral, or less valuable/privileged to a community or "mainstream" society.

Marginalized

Excluded, ignored, or relegated to the outer edge of a group/society/community.

Microinvalidation

Communications that subtly exclude, negate or nullify the thoughts, feelings, or experiential reality of a person of color. For instance, white individuals often ask Asian Americans where they were born, conveying that they are perpetual foreigners in their land.

Micro-Aggressions

Commonplace daily verbal, behavioral, or environmental indignities that communicate hostile, derogatory racial slights, whether intentional or unintentional. These messages may be sent verbally, ("You speak good English"), non-verbally (clutching one's purse more tightly around people from certain race/ethnicity), or environmentally (symbols like the confederate flag or using Native American mascots). Such communications are usually outside the level of conscious awareness of perpetrators.

Micro-Insults

Verbal and nonverbal communications subtly convey rudeness and insensitivity and demean a person's racial heritage or identity. An example is an employee who asks a colleague of color how she got her job, implying she may have landed it through an affirmative action or quota system.

Multicultural

Relating to or constituting several cultural or ethnic groups within a society.

Multicultural Feminism

The advocacy of women's rights on the ground of the equality of the sexes within cultural/ethnic groups within a society.

Non-Binary/Gender Queer/Gender Variant

Terms used by people who experience their gender identity and/or gender expression as falling outside the categories of man and woman.

Oppression

Results from the use of institutional power and privilege where one person or group benefits at the expense of another. Oppression is the use of power and the effects of domination.

Pansexual

Refers to the potential for sexual attraction or romantic love toward people of all gender identities and biological sexes. The concept of pansexuality deliberately rejects the gender binary and derives its origin from the transgender movement.

People of Color

A collective term for men and women of Asian, African, Latin, and Native American backgrounds, as opposed to the collective "White" for those of European ancestry.

Personal Identity

Our identities as individuals include our personal characteristics, history, personality, name, and other characteristics that make us unique and different from other individuals.

Prejudice

A prejudgment or preconceived opinion, feeling, or belief, usually negative, often based on stereotypes, that includes feelings such as dislike or contempt and is often enacted as discrimination or other harmful behavior; OR, a set of negative personal beliefs about a social group that leads individuals to prejudge individuals from that group or the group in general, regardless of individual differences among members of that group.

Privilege

Unearned access to resources (social power) is only readily available to some individuals due to their social group.

Race

A social construct that artificially divides individuals into distinct groups based on characteristics such as physical appearance (particularly skin color), ancestral heritage, cultural affiliation or history, ethnic classification, and/or the social, economic, and political needs of a society at a given period. Scientists agree that there is no biological or genetic basis for racial categories.

Racial Equity

The condition that would be achieved if one's racial identity is no longer predicted, in a statistical sense, how one fares. When this term is used, the term may imply that racial equity is one part of racial justice, and thus also includes work to address the root causes of inequities, not just their manifestations. This consists of eliminating policies, practices, attitudes, and cultural messages that reinforce differential outcomes by race or fail to eliminate them.

Racial Inequity

When two or more racial groups are not standing on approximately equal footing, such as the percentages of each ethnic group in terms of dropout rates, single-family home ownership, access to healthcare, etc.

Racial Profiling

The discriminatory practice of targeting individuals for suspicion of crime based on the individual's race, ethnicity, religion, or national origin.

Racial Trauma

Trauma, or race-based stress, comes from dealing with racial harassment, racial violence, or institutional racism. Can result from significant experiences of racism, such as workplace discrimination or hate crimes, or it can be the result of the accumulation of many minor occurrences, such as microaggressions.

Racism

The belief that different races possess distinct characteristics, abilities, or qualities, especially so as to distinguish them as inferior or superior to one another.

Racist

Prejudiced against or antagonistic toward a person or people based on their membership in a particular racial or ethnic group, typically one that is a minority or marginalized.

Reparations

States have a legal duty to acknowledge and address widespread or systematic human rights violations, in cases where the state caused the violations or did not seriously try to prevent them. Reparations initiatives seek to address the harms caused by these violations. They can take the form of compensating for the losses suffered, which helps overcome some of the consequences of abuse. They can also be future-oriented—providing rehabilitation and a better life to victims—and help to change the underlying causes of abuse. Reparations publicly affirm that victims are rights-holders entitled to redress.

Sexual Orientations

A person's identity in relation to the gender or genders to which they are sexually attracted, the fact of being heterosexual, homosexual, etc.

Social Identity

Involves how one characterizes oneself, the affinities one has with other people, the ways one has learned to behave in stereotyped social settings, the things one values in oneself and the world, and the norms one recognizes or accepts governing everyday behavior.

Stereotype

Blanket beliefs and expectations about members of certain groups that present an oversimplified opinion, prejudiced attitude, or uncritical judgment. They go beyond necessary and helpful categorizations and generalizations in that they are typically negative, are based on little information and are highly generalized.

Transgender/Trans

Term for people whose gender identity differs from the sex they were assigned at birth. The term transgender does not indicate gender expression, sexual orientation, hormonal makeup, physical anatomy, or how one is perceived daily.

Unconscious Bias

Social stereotypes about certain groups of people that individuals form outside their conscious awareness. Everyone holds unconscious beliefs about various social and identity groups, and these biases stem from one's tendency to organize social worlds by categorizing.

Xenophobia

Hatred or fear of foreigners/strangers or their politics or culture.

“INCLUSIVE LANGUAGE GUIDES”

We know that words are powerful and can help build bridges or tear them down. As language evolves, we should all be open to learning new terms and unlearning older terms that may offend or alienate others. We have compiled a few resources to help guide you towards learning inclusive terms and working to include these terms in your communications to your members.

FORMING AN ASSOCIATION EQUITY, DIVERSITY & INCLUSION COMMITTEE

PURPOSE/MISSION STATEMENT:

A clear and concise purpose is fundamental to an effective Equity, Diversity, & Inclusion (EDI) Committee. The purpose is more substantial when it is linked to the association's mission and strategic plan.

The purpose must help guide leadership and committee members as they plan association policies and activities.

SAMPLE: Effectively communicate with Arizona's diverse population to help Arizona REALTORS® to be the best prepared real estate practitioners with the highest standards and build successful relationships with their clients, colleagues, and other housing industry professionals.

SAMPLE: To recommend policy and action regarding the inclusion of diversity in the association's governance and that of local associations within the state. To develop and recommend strategies and actions that will identify, engage, recruit, and mentor future leaders at the state and local level who represent the diversity of our markets and the membership of our associations. To provide guidance and support for local association inclusion efforts.

COMPOSITION:

Create a standing committee which demonstrates your association's intention to make EDI and fair housing (if your association does not have a dedicated fair housing committee) an integral part of your mission and strategic plan.

Consider including leaders from other association committees such as government affairs and professional development, regional or local association representatives, and leaders from any state or local multicultural real estate organizations.

The committee should meet throughout the year, similar to other committees of the association. In-person meetings help develop trust among members, that are particularly important when discussing EDI issues. The Equity, Diversity & Inclusion committee should also have authority, similar to other committees, to recommend policies and activities to the Board of Directors.

GOALS:

Develop clear, long-term goals.

Develop a Plan: Make an assessment of the issues your association can affect. Prioritize the association's EDI goals so that the committee can address the most pressing goals first.

Strategic Plan: Based on your association's planning schedule, create an EDI plan reflecting your goals, mission statement, and purposes. Your efforts should be S.M.A.R.T. (Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Relevant, Time-based). Measure your progress and hold your committee and association accountable for EDI efforts.

Business Plan: The committee should have a business plan. The plan should include:

- what the committee plans to accomplish during the year
- how the goals will be measured
- any programs or events that should be added to the budget

Education: Provide opportunities for members to expand their knowledge of EDI and fair housing. EDI education is crucial for building relationships and business. The "At Home with Diversity Course" and promotion of "Fairhaven" are great starting points.

Leadership: Encourage diversity in association leadership and other volunteer roles.

PARTNERSHIPS:

1. Work to foster relationships with multicultural real estate and community-based organizations.
2. Develop relationships with government entities with the assistance of government affairs liaisons and legislative committees.
3. In partnership with these organizations, work to identify real estate issues affecting local communities and develop the association's plan or response.

Utilize the resources that NAR offers, including the NAR Diversity and Inclusion grants and Fair Housing grants to help supplement your association's EDI and Fair Housing activities.

A word from NAR about other Diversity education or fair housing activities and concerns: Educating members about diversity and the importance of serving all communities without discrimination is a priority mission of our associations. Those activities are distinct from those that work to assure that the leadership of the association reflects the diversity of the state and the markets served by members. Associations should also have a fair housing committee to address fair housing issues and education, including education about serving diverse markets within the state.
